Wills Trusts and Bequests

Suggested Language

Your will or trust is a very important document. It is too important to be left to a few notes on a piece of paper. Your will reflects your wishes. Instead of the courts appointing an executor (personal representative), someone you select will handle your desires. A will makes provision for family members in a way that state statutes cannot. Your will/trust lets you disburse money to your children and grandchildren in an orderly and prolonged manner, and in a manner which might reduce any potential taxes. Your will/trust can also identify the Parke County Community Foundation Inc. or other charities to receive special bequests. In short, your will/trust allocates your assets according to your desires. Here are several points to consider regarding your will/trust.

- ◆ First, your will/trust needs to be legally valid. We recommend you see an attorney who specializes in estate planning. They know the right questions to ask and the best way to accomplish your goals.
- ◆ Second, make sure your will/trust is up to date. Life never stays the same. Within a few years new estate laws may arise, family members may develop different needs, or the composition of your estate may change. As many attorneys say, “An out of date document could be as harmful as none at all.” Remember, your document can be amended. It is not locked in concrete, and you can change it easily. The important thing is to have a workable document in place.
- ◆ Third, make sure your will/trust is safely stored. Keep a copy in your files at home, but keep the original in a secure location. You do not want to lose this important document through fire or theft. Make sure that your personal representative and your family know how to find the document.
